MDO.MONTECARLO PRIZE 2022 is adding new content by creating fresh opportunities for interaction between the realms of production and design

Following the success of the first edition of MDO.MONTECARLO PRIZE in terms of participation and prestige, and

Under the High Patronage of H.S.H. Prince Albert II of Monaco

the organizers MDO and l'Arca International, with the backing of IFI World, ADI, Institut Français du Design, Dedalo Minosse, Fuorisalone Milano are planning to hold the second edition in an even more culturally poignant setting for all the nominated businesses taking part in the awards ceremony.

This edition of the PRIZE will be awarding 14 “pyramid” trophies in each of 14 new product categories.

The official awards ceremony will be held at GRIMALDI FORUM in the Principality of Monaco on the evening of 25th November 2022.

The event will be preceded by the so-called Making&Creating Exhibition-Convention being organized at the same location on Thursday 24th and Friday 25th November 2022.

On this occasion, all the nominated companies will have their own allocated space to present themselves and take part in the Making&Creating international convention hosting important speakers from all over the world. It will be an opportunity for designers and business people from different countries to meet and interact together.

2022 EDITION THE PRIZE

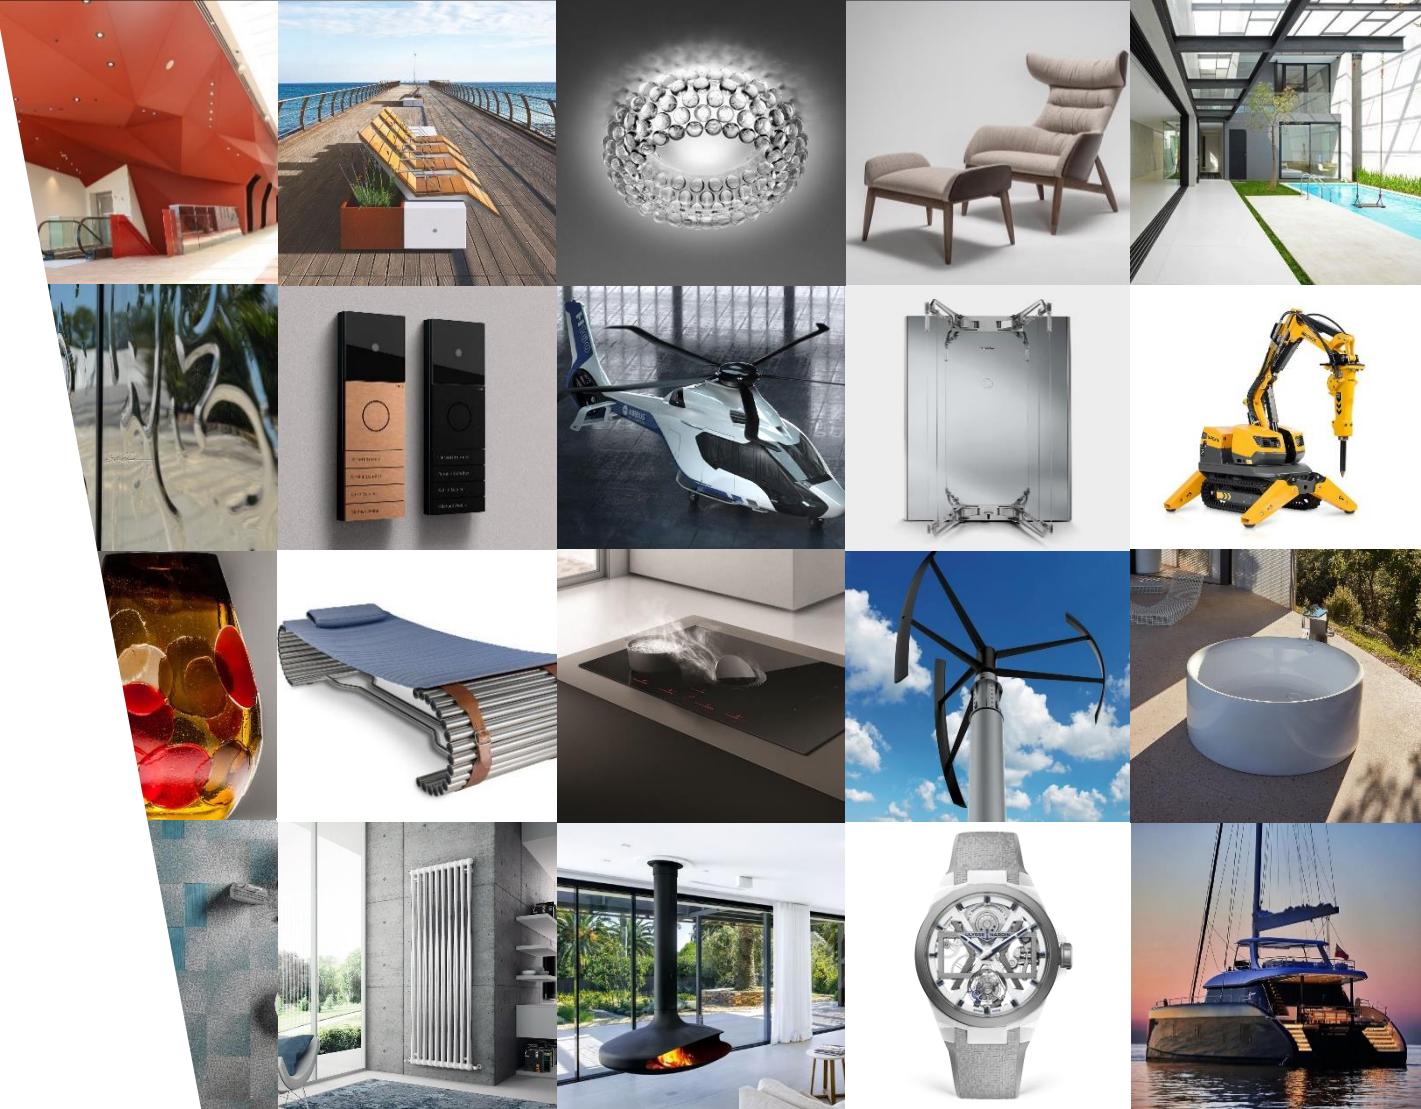

MDO.MONTECARLO PRIZE 2022 will be awarding 14 prizes, one in each category

Companies can put themselves forward for the category most suited to their business. The new Scientific Committee will ratify the nomination for official entry in the competition. The company in question will then present its own profile and product documentation.

An international panel of seven judges composed of business people, architects and designers will meet in the Principality of Monaco in October 2022 to award 14 trophies to the winning companies.

The panel of judges will take into account each company's business profile and background, as well as the stylistic, dimensional, functional and ergonomic features of the products presented for the Prize.

The panel of judges will award special commendations to companies that have presented products mainly focused on ethical-ecological and energy-related values, particularly on an experimental basis.

It is hoped that at least one representative from the participating companies, sponsors and partners will attend the two-day Exhibition-Convention.

FARE &CREARE

The “MAKING&CREATING” International Convention will be open to all representatives of the nominated companies and any other international operators, professionals and university staff interested in signing up for the event.

Industry is by definition the realm of making, producing and building, where creativity unfolds in the realms of knowledge, imagination and artistic drive. On one hand we have industrial rationality and on the other design, a new kind of culture that appeared on the scene some time ago and has transformed products into an artform.

Nevertheless, the relationship between the two is often transformed and upturned in post-modern society. Today's cutting-edge technology has given industrial products their own stylistic quality and efficiency, while design is often a key player in industrial production that uses the form of objects to develop their technical-economic quality.

The MAKING&CREATING Exhibition-Convention will investigate both sides of this culture of ours, focusing on its crossovers and progression, while casting a glance into the future when the relationship between industry and design will inevitably take on new balances and perspectives.

There will be two days of debate and interaction led by university staff, business people, designers and journalists, who will set up a unique and prestigious platform of interaction and exchange between industry, culture and design.
